Opposing an Initial Family Order : Step-by-step

IMPORTANT!

This guide has been produced by the Yukon Department of Justice, Court Services Branch, with financial assistance from Justice Canada. It is intended to be used as a guide only and is not considered a comprehensive legal resource.

The information provided does not replace a lawyer's advice and cannot teach you everything you need to know. Even if you decide to proceed without a lawyer, you should consult a lawyer for interpretation of the law that applies to your case and for other legal advice.

The information provided in this guide is believed to be correct as of its date of publication of March 2009.

At the time of publication, the Yukon Family Property and Support Act had not yet been updated to include same-sex relationships. However, the Supreme Court of Yukon changed the definition of marriage to mean "the voluntary union for life of two persons to the exclusion of all others" in 2004, (Dunbar & Edge v. Yukon (Government of) & Canada (A.G.) 2004 YKSC 54). The terms "married" and "common-law" throughout the self-help guides refer to either opposite sex or same-sex unions.

At the time of publication of this guide, the Child and Family Services Act, the successor to the Children's Act, had not been proclaimed. Following proclamation, references in this guide to the Children's Act can be taken to refer to the new legislation.

Opposing an Initial Family Order

A court order is a decision made by a judge that the people named in it must follow. This guide provides step-by-step instructions for opposing an application to the Supreme Court of Yukon for an initial (first) court order that deals with matters that are covered by the Family Property and Support Act, the Children's Act or the Divorce Act (Canada), such as divorce, spousal support and child support, custody and access.

Other publications produced by the Yukon Department of Justice, Court Services Branch, provide more information on family law that can help you understand your legal issue and court procedures. Additional tools, information and publications on family law and child support can be found on the Family Law Information Centre website at www.yukonflic.ca.

Basic Information on Opposing an Initial Family Order

If you do not agree with what the other party is asking for in an application, you can oppose the application. The judge will make a decision based on the information (evidence) provided by both parties and the laws that apply to your situation, including the Child Support Guidelines if children are involved.

Whenever possible, work together to try to come to an agreement before going to court. You may not be able to agree on every issue, and can still go to court to ask a judge to decide about the things you can't agree on. When you have settled as much as you can with the other party outside of court, you are more likely to get an order that will work in the best interests of your changing family.

The amount of time you have to respond to or oppose an application is written in the Statement of Claim and the Notice of Application you received. There are different response times allowed for the forms you need to file. Calculate the response time from the date you were served. If you do not respond to the application within the time allowed, a judge can issue a court order in default (without your input). When deciding on child or spousal support, a judge can "impute" your annual income if a Financial Statement has not been filed

If at any step in your family law proceeding you and the other party come to an agreement, you can apply for a consent order. Information and instructions for requesting a Consent Order can be found in the Family Law Self-Help Guide: Consent Orders.

Child Support

Child support is a child's right and a parent's responsibility under the law. If children are involved in your family law matter, understand the law before you begin. The federal Child Support Guidelines came into effect in May 1997 as regulations under the Canada Divorce Act. The Yukon introduced the Yukon Child Support Guidelines, a regulation under the Yukon's Family Property and Support Act, in April 2000. Your situation determines which guidelines apply to you. The judge will refer to the federal or territorial Child Support Guidelines when making a decision about child support. The Child Support Guidelines are designed to reduce conflict about child support and to protect the best interests of children by making sure that child support is fair, predictable and consistent.

Inter-jurisdictional Support Orders

For information on opposing an Inter-jurisdictional Support Order, contact the Maintenance Enforcement Program at 867-667-5437 or toll free in Yukon at 877-617-5347, or visit their website at www.yukonmep.ca.

Opposing an Application for an Initial Family Order: Step-by-step

Step 1: Research the laws and rules that apply to your family matter

Before you begin, you should research the laws and rules that apply to your situation. Read the other publications produced by the Department of Justice, Court Services Branch that apply to your family law matter, as well as the Supreme Court of Yukon Rule 63: Divorce and Family Law and Rule 63A: Financial Disclosure. (Rules can be found on the Supreme Court of Yukon website at www.yukoncourts.ca). You can also read the Family Property and Support Act, the Children's Act, and the Divorce Act (Canada). You should consult a lawyer for interpretation of the law that applies to your case and for other legal advice.

Contact the Family Law Information Centre at 867-456-6721, toll free 1-800-661-0408 ext 6721, or visit their website at www.yukonflic.ca for more information and links to publications.

Step 2: Collect your supporting documents

If you are required to submit a Financial Statement - Form 94, you will need to provide documents to support the income, debt, special expenses and assets you are reporting.

You will also need to collect any other documents that you will be submitting as evidence.

Step 3: Prepare and complete forms

To oppose an initial family order, you will need to fill out forms to submit to the court registry with information specific to your case. Supreme Court forms can be found in Microsoft Word format at www.yukoncourts.ca under Supreme Court, Yukon Rules and Forms. The staff at the Family Law Information Centre can help you to complete your Supreme Court forms either over the telephone or on one of the workstations at their office. They cannot provide legal advice or tell you what to write in your court forms, but they can provide guidance on the rules for completing the forms and help with using Microsoft Word.

Many of the forms come with instructions throughout the body of the document on how to fill them out. You should not delete the instructions. If you are removing any content from a form that does not apply to your situation, do not change or reset the numbering or lettering for any other paragraph.

IMPORTANT! When preparing your documents, remember that family law issues are adult problems. Do not involve your children in drafting affidavits or reviewing court documents.

Generally, the forms you will need to file when opposing a family order are:

- A) Appearance – Form 9
- B) Statement of Defence (Family Law) – Form 92 (to respond to the Statement of Claim (Family Law))
- C) Counterclaim (Family Law) – Form 93 (if you are making your own claim)
- D) Response – Form 11 (to respond to the Notice of Application)
- E) Affidavit – Form 59
- F) Financial Statement – Form 94 (if required under Rule 63A)

Completing your forms:

The Supreme Court file number assigned to the original application does not change. Record the number on all your forms.

A) Appearance – Form 9

If you are opposing an initial application, you must file an Appearance – Form 9. This form tells the court that you are the person to be contacted for the file (you are the person “on record”). It does not mean that you will have to “appear” in court.

The Appearance – Form 9 has the shortest time for response. The amount of time you are allowed to file an Appearance – Form 9 is defined in the Statement of Claim depending on where you were served. Calculate the response time from the date you were served the Statement of Claim.

You do not have to file the other forms for your defence with the appearance. However, you must file the appearance with the court within the time allowed and then serve the appearance on the other party.

B) Statement of Defence (Family Law) – Form 92

To oppose a Statement of Claim (Family Law) – Form 91, file a Statement of Defence (Family Law) – Form 92. In the Statement of Defence, you will tell the court what you agree to and what you oppose in the Statement of Claim. The amount of time you are allowed to file a Statement of Defence (Family Law) – Form 92 is defined in the Statement of Claim. Calculate the response time from the date you were served the Statement of Claim.

C) Counterclaim (Family Law) – Form 93 (and parts of Statement of Claim (Family Law) – Form 91)

If you are making your own claim, you must file a Counterclaim (Family Law) – Form 93. You will have to complete and attach the parts from the Statement of Claim (Family Law) – Form 91 that apply to your claim for divorce, custody, access, child support, spousal support, division of family assets, and/or for other relief.

D) Response – Form 11

This form is used to respond to a Notice of Application – Form 52. In the response, you must say what you agree to in the Notice of Application and to what you do not. You must also list the affidavits you are filing in your Response.

E) Affidavit – Form 59

An affidavit is the document that states any information that you want the judge to know. Filing an Affidavit is a way to give written evidence to the court. You can file additional affidavits at any time throughout your proceeding as long as the other party has been served with reasonable notice before a hearing. Your affidavit and all exhibits must be sworn. (See Step 5: Have your Financial Statement and Affidavits notarized). Do not sign your document until you are having it sworn before the Notary Public or other qualified person!

Be sure that your evidence is complete, accurate, clear and relevant to your application. You must, in all cases, tell the truth. In your affidavit you can only say things that you know personally to be true or things that you believe to be true (but you must give a reason for that belief). There are serious legal consequences for not telling the truth in a sworn document. The other party or other party's lawyer can cross-examine you about anything you include in your affidavit.

If you have more than one supporting document (exhibit) to attach to any affidavit, you must place consecutively numbered tabs on the first page of each exhibit. Also, each page of an individual exhibit must be numbered consecutively. For more information on rules for affidavits, see Rule 49: Affidavits.

The affidavit is a very important document because it contains most of your evidence. There are special rules for preparing an affidavit. The Yukon Department of Justice has published an information sheet titled Preparing an Affidavit (Family Law) to help you complete an Affidavit – Form 59.

F) Financial Statement - Form 94

This form is used to report income, debt, special expenses and assets for calculating child support, spousal support, and division of property. Additional information on the Rules of Court for financial disclosure can be found in Rule 63A. You may or may not be required to complete this form depending on your situation. However, a judge may order that you file the form even if you are not required to under Rule 63A. The form contains very specific instructions for filling it out. Only complete the sections that are right for your situation. Your completed Financial Statement and supporting documents must be sworn. (See Step 5: Have your Financial Statement and Affidavits notarized). Do not sign your document until you are having it sworn before the Notary Public or other qualified person!

Each page of the supporting documents that you are filing with the Financial Statement must be numbered consecutively and attached to the form.

Step 4: Make copies of all your forms and documents

You will need four sets of your forms to submit for filing. The original filed document will always remain on the court file and the three sets of filed copies will be returned to you. Keep one set for your own records, serve one set on the other party and attach one set to the Affidavit of Service.

Step 5: Have your Financial Statement and Affidavits notarized

The Financial Statement - Form 94 and all Affidavits must be sworn. Bring all copies of your documents and proof of identification with you to be sworn by a Notary Public or someone else who is allowed to hear an oath, such as a lawyer, justice of the peace or a commissioner of oaths. Some government staff members are Notaries Public, including those working in the Sheriff's Office and the Family Law Information Centre.

Step 6: File your forms with the Supreme Court

When you mail or bring your forms to the court registry for filing, the Clerk of the Supreme Court will review your forms before accepting them. The clerk will look to see that you have followed the Rules of Court but will not provide advice or comment on the content of your documents. Your forms will be stamped by the clerk with the date that they were filed.

When you file forms with the court registry, fees generally apply. You can find a list of fees online at www.yukoncourts.ca, Supreme Court, as "Appendix C: Fees" on the Yukon Rules and Forms page. You can also contact the Family Law Information Centre at 867-456-5721 or toll free 1-800-661-0408 ext. 6721 to find out how much money you will need to pay. If you send your forms by mail, you must include the filing fees or your forms will be returned. The court registry will accept payment by cash, cheque, debit card (if you come in person to the office in Whitehorse) or by Visa or MasterCard.

Step 7: Arrange to have your filed forms served on the other party

According to Rule 63, a Statement of Defence (Family Law) – Form 92 or Counterclaim (Family Law) – Form 93 must be served by someone other than the defendant.

Whenever you file documents or forms with the court, you always have to provide the other party with a copy. The Sheriff's Office (867-667-5451 or toll free 1-800-661-0408, ext. 5451) can provide a list of process servers, or they may be able to serve your documents for you. A fee is usually charged for this service.

Step 8: Prepare and file an Affidavit of Service

The person who serves your documents must sign and swear an Affidavit of Service - Form 7 for filing with the court. Depending on who you choose to serve your documents, you may have to prepare an Affidavit of Service for the server. Once completed, a copy of all documents served will be attached as exhibits to the Affidavit of Service. The Affidavit of Service must be sworn in the same way your other affidavits and financial statement were sworn (see Step 5). Be sure to make a copy of the completed Affidavit of Service before filing it with the court. You do not have to provide the other party with the Affidavit of Service.

It is important to file the Affidavit of Service with the court registry before the court date so that if the other party does not show up on the court date, the judge has proof that he or she was notified about it.

Step 9: Wait for a response from the other party

The other party can oppose your Response – Form 11 by filing their own responding affidavits. If no response is filed, you can proceed to Step 11.

Step 10: Prepare responding Affidavits

If, after you receive responding forms from the other party, there is more information that you would like the court to know, you can file another Affidavit - Form 59. After you have completed your responding Affidavit, you will have to repeat Steps 3-8.

The other party can, in turn, respond to your response. This process can be repeated.

It is important to remember that the judge will make his or her decision based upon the evidence. Responding to documents filed with the court is a way to present additional information as evidence, not a means to "argue" with the other party.

The other party must be served with your responding documents. However, it is strongly recommended that, even when you are not required to, you have someone else serve your documents for you. If you deliver the documents yourself, there may be a greater risk of conflict between you and the other party.

Step 11: Go to Court/Hearing

Court Services has published Representing Yourself to help you to prepare for court. You can pick up a copy at court registry or download the guide online from the Court Services page of the Justice website at www.justice.gov.yk.ca.

Bring all your files and supporting documents, as well as a pen and paper with you. Unless the judge specifically asks you to, do not bring your children with you to court.

On the day of court, check the Chambers list to find your courtroom number. These lists are posted in the atrium of the Law Courts Building on Second Avenue in Whitehorse. The list is posted just outside the Court Services office. If you are uncertain about where to go, ask at the Supreme Court counter to confirm the courtroom number.

Your name will appear on the Chambers list. Your name will be called when it is time for your application to be heard. Be sure to be in court at the start time of the list. Even if your name is further down the list, you may be called earlier if hearings before yours proceed quickly or are cancelled.

You will be asked to present your case to the judge. The only facts that you can discuss in court are the ones that are included in your affidavits or affidavits from the other party. Be prepared to answer questions from the judge and from the other party or the other party's lawyer.

The judge will make a decision based on the evidence provided by both parties and the laws that apply to your situation, including the Child Support Guidelines if children are involved.

Step 12: Sign the Order

After a judge makes a decision, the applicant/plaintiff will usually prepare an Order - Form 44.

If you were present for the hearing, you must sign the order, unless the judge said that you did not need to. Signing the order does not mean that you agree with it. It means that you agree that the terms of the order are substantially the same as what the judge said in court. If you are unsure that the terms are substantially the same, you can purchase a copy of the court clerk's notes from the court registry to compare.

If you are not served with a filed copy of the order, you can get a copy from the court registry.

Additional Steps

If your matter involves a claim for custody, access or child support, the court requires both parties to take the parenting workshop called For the Sake of the Children. (See Supreme Court Practice Direction 37 about Parenting after Separation or Divorce on the Supreme Court page, www.yukoncourts.ca). The requirement does not apply to parents who do not live within 30 km of a community where the workshops are offered, when the parties involved have filed a written agreement settling the issues between them, or when all children are 16 years of age or older. For more information or to register for the For the Sake of the Children workshop, contact the Family Law Information Centre.

In all new family matters, the court also requires that a family law case conference be held with a judge within 60 days of the date of service of the Statement of Claim, except in those cases that are exempt. (See Rule 63 on the Supreme Court page, Rules and Forms, www.yukoncourts.ca). Failure to hold a family case conference within 60 days may result in an application being struck off the list of court cases or adjourned by the judge. Contact the Trial Coordinator at 867-667-3442 or toll free 1.800-661-0408 ext. 3442, to schedule a family law case conference. If you live outside of Whitehorse, you can ask for permission to attend by telephone or by videoconference.

If you and the other party work out an agreement in the Family Law Case Conference, you can prepare and file a Family Law Case Conference Order – Form 109.
